Israelis Are Most Welcome In West Africa With "Soft-Sell" Aid Program Against Political Barriers

From a scribbled word in a black notebook the Israeli Government has built an aid-to-Africa program that has broken down some political barriers and made the Israelis possibly the most welcome strangers in West Africa.

The word was "shipline." It was jotted down by an Israeli official at Accra three years ago when the new Ghana Government was showing its assistance "shopping list" to foreign missions, says the New York Times. Six months later the Ghanaian flag was flying over vessels of a Ghanaian-Israeli shipping line.

For the past two years the line has been showing a profit. Now the Israelis are selling their forty per cent interest back to Ghanaians. Until the Ghanaians can take over entirely, Israelis will manage the line on a contract basis.

That first venture showed the factors that have made Israeli assistance popular in Ghana. These are speed, economy, no talk about charity, and understanding by both sides that the Israelis are ready and eager to move out of a program as quickly as they moved in.

In Ghana and in other West African countries such as Mali and Senegal, Africans give other reasons for their interest in assistance from Israel: "We have no fears of getting involved in a power struggle," said a Mali politician. "It seems logical to us that since we are small we can learn more from a small efficient country than from a big efficient country," an official in Senegal said.

For the Israelis, the program has helped Israel to establish diplomatic relations with virtually every new African state. This was a prime Israeli motivation — to prevent the Arab states from building boycott walls around her in Africa.

The Israelis do not pretend that their assistance program has given them any great political leverage in West Africa. At the United Nations, Israel and the African states are often on opposite sides of the voting sheet, says the New York Times. And the African states are being wooed by great powers.

There was a time in Ghana when Israel might have had more political influence simply by being one of the first nations on the spot. But there are twenty-six foreign nations represented at Accra now.

The Israelis make it clear that they think one of their chief attributes is the fact that they are not pushing too hard for influence. Their political goal was to break out of political encirclement and they feel they have achieved it.

Some Westerners in Africa feel that the Israeli program could serve as a model for their own activities. But as far as the United States is concerned, the Israeli aid program is built on two essentials that Washington might find difficult to copy.

The first is quick action. The Israeli Embassy at Accra does not have to refer every request for a specialist home for judgment. The Embassy can make up its own mind on the merits of the appeal and get the man to Accra in two weeks. The United States program is a complicated, slowly moving affair and Washington usually makes the decisions.

The Israelis are also convinced of the importance of [illegible] with [illegible] African [illegible] Socialist-minded [illegible] form of privately owned industry and trade.

The Israelis make it a point of emphasizing that although they have technical knowledge, they are from a small country with limited resources. Thus, they say, the African states will have to parti-

Public College Frats Must End Racial, Religious Bias

All fraternities and sororities on Oregon's public college campuses have been ordered to end racial and religious discrimination in pledging members or face withdrawal of their charters. Dr. Roy E. Lieualien, chancellor for the seven state-operated colleges, recently instructed all presidents of the institutions, says the New York Times, to get statements from the fraternities and sororities on their campuses declaring that they "are free to select members without discrimination without regard to race, creed, or color."

"If this freedom does not exist," Dr. Lieualien said, he was "confident that the local charter will be lifted immediately."

The State Board of Higher Education established a deadline for an end to discrimination. None of the 91 chapters on the three public campuses with national fraternities and sororities have Negro members. Several have Jewish and Oriental members.

All but two of the chapters stated that they had no discriminatory clauses in their charters. Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Nu are still said to have discriminatory policies on the national level. However, these fraternities are reported to have granted waivers of the restriction to Oregon chapters.

At Portland State College, the social groups began organizing only two years ago. Branford Millar, president, said it was not particularly significant yet that none of the eight chapters at Portland State had pledged Negroes. He said because the groups are not fully established and do not have adequate facilities for members [illegible] said the college was not able to find any evidence of racial discrimination in her case and she is reported to have been satisfied to let the matter drop.

At the University of Oregon in Eugene and Oregon State University in Corvallis, the fraternities and sororities have a long record of activity. Although all of the chapters on these campuses are said to be free of discrimination, there has been criticism because none of them has pledged Negroes, says the New York Times. The chapters point out that there are few Negroes in attendance and that it is difficult to pinpoint the subtleties involved in pledging members to social groups.

ISRAEL DEMANDS GERMANY CURB WORK OF ITS EXPERTS IN EGYPT ON WEAPONS CAPABLE OF MASS DESTRUCTION OF JEWISH STATE

The Knesset (Israeli Parliament) called upon the German Government to put an immediate end to the activity of German scientists and experts working in Egypt "on the manufacture of weapons of mass destruction to be used against Israel".

The resolution was adopted after the House had heard a Government statement by Mrs. Golda Meir, the Foreign Minister, which did not specifically mention the radiological, bacteriological, and chemical weapons which the press has been writing about, reports the London Times, but said that "German scientists and technicians are helping to develop . . . armaments . . . especially of a particular category which serve solely for destruction of life".

All parties except the communists sponsored the joint resolution which read:—

"The Knesset resolves that the activity of German scientists and experts working in Egypt on the manufacture of weapons of mass destruction to be used against Israel is a danger to the security of Israel and its population.

"The German people cannot exempt itself from responsibility for the continuation of this vile work. It is the duty of the German Government to put an immediate end to this dangerous activity of its citizens and take all steps required to prevent this cooperation with the Egyptian Government.

"The Knesset calls upon enlightened world public opinion to exercise its influence without delay in [illegible] this activity [illegible] the future of Israel in which the remnants of our people who have survived the Nazi holocaust are gathered."

The resolution summarized Mrs. Meir's statement which fell far short of the full documentary exposure of the work of German experts in Egypt, which the Israel press demanded in leading articles.

The statement attacked the German Government on a vulnerable spot by describing the German scientists' help to President Nasser in preparation of weapons to destroy Israel as a continuation of Hitler's uncompleted campaign to wipe out the Jewish people. It said:

"There is no doubt that the motives of this evil crew are a lust for gain and on the other hand the Nazi inclination of hatred for Israel and the destruction of the Jews.

"This is no new development. As far back as the days of Hitler close ties between Cairo and the Nazis were well-known and it is no secret that Cairo serves today as a principal centre and asylum for Nazis."

While she conceded that it was inconceivable that the situation was in keeping with the desires of the Adenauer Government, Mrs. Meir said:

"These scientists and technicians are its citizens. The German Government cannot remain indifferent to the fact that 18 years after the fall of the Hitlerite regime which brought about the destruction of millions of Jews we once again find members of that people responsible for acts designed to destroy the state of Israel within which survivors of the holocaust have been gathered."

Mrs. Meir recalled the continued efforts of President Nasser to build up great strength in order to implement his declared aim of destroying Israel. For years large quantities of armaments had been flowing into Egypt, she said, reports the London Times, alluding to jet aircraft, tanks, and artillery obtained from Russia. She went on:

"Those types of weapons which other powers are unwilling to supply her are being obtained through the group of conscienceless scientists who are not only prepared to do [illegible] will [illegible] make [illegible] to the state [illegible]

The Minister rejected the claim of "blameless" Germans that legal difficulties prevent them from stopping German citizens from going to Egypt and working there. She said:

"We address ourselves to the Government of Germany and the masses of the German people who abhor the past of Nazi Germany and who desire a different Germany, and we state emphatically that neither we nor, we are sure, world public opinion can reconcile ourselves to this situation.

"We demand that the German Government put a stop to the activities of these scientists and if legislative or other measures are required for the purpose we demand that such measures be taken at once in order to put an immediate stop to cooperation between German citizens and the Egyptian Government in this field."

The Minister dwelt briefly on the arrest of alleged Israel agents in Switzerland on suspicion of attempting to coerce German scientists engaged in Cairo.

The Federal Government began looking into the question of West-German scientists and technicians working on rocket projects for the Egyptian Government. It is also studying how far their activities extend to other weapons.

There has been an official assurance that "considerable significance" is attached to the appeal by Mrs. Meir, the Israel Foreign Minister, in the Knesset to West Germany to get its citizens to give up this work, though it was too early to say what practical steps, if any, might be taken.

The authorities have no figures of how many German citizens are working for the Egyptians, as no records are kept of those employed abroad, but officials suggested that the figure of 400 reported from Israel was probably exaggerated.

Bonn is evidently aware of the ugly impression created abroad by the fact that it is German rocket experts, some of whom were employed at Peenemünde during the Second World War and who have since been unable to find employment in the Federal Republic, who are now so conspicuous in helping the Egyptians to make weapons of destruction for possible use [illegible] must require the [illegible] Considerable political [illegible] foreseen if the Federal Government should try to prohibit this work.

A series of attacks and kidnappings and the latest alleged threats by agents against Professor Paul Goercke, who is employed at Cairo University, have brought another aspect of the matter to the German public's attention, but the opinion is also to be heard that the Israel Government should have made its appeal to Bonn earlier, rather than permit its agents to engage in suspect activities.

Nearly two years ago the Federal Government got Professor

REMEMBER

The memories of Passovers gone by—the march and rote of the Chametz—Grandpa poking around the kitchen, making the horseradish and the Charoseth—putting on the new suit of clothes and shoes—pockets full of hazel nuts—shel shlemels—somebody crying for the Seder to start—Uncle Joe and Aunt Sadie were always late—the whole family together—Grandpa looking like a king propping the pillow on the chair beside him—Grandma tired after baking and cooking all day but "the Seder" my queen, he called her—the Kiddush and then my turn for "Ma Nishtanah" and the answer given with Grandpa's voice ringing out over all—the first half of the Haggadah almost over—even the bitter herbs tasted so good—Passover it was always "Kosher"—all were satisfied to eat it otherwise we could not get the hard boiled egg and salt water—and then the meal—nobody, but nobody, could cook better than Grandma—we ate—and ate and then the "Afikoman"—and the rest of the Haggadah—and some more cups of wine—and the opening of the door—and the chants of hope in the old country ushering in and the whole family by appointing at that year—[illegible] of all the songs with which the second half of the Haggadah abounds—and the holding [illegible] Grandpa—goodnight—and joy brought that tomorrow the same thing over again.....

"My Task Is To Bring Warm-Hearted, Human Understanding To The Cold Print Of Immigration Laws"

Partial Text of the Address Given at the Annual Meeting of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Services Central Region, in Toronto

BY THE HONOURABLE RICHARD A. BELL, Q.C., M.P., MINISTER OF CITIZENSHIP AND IMMIGRATION, OF CANADA

Each new immigrant presents an individual problem, and the aspect of your service for which my admiration is unlimited, is the extent to which it is personalized, personalized to the specific individual needs and problems of the newcomer. Helping the immigrant to help himself, that, as I apprehend it, is the theme, the ground rule of your organization and it is the best possible approach in assisting an immigrant in his new environment to become a happy, adjusted, productive citizen of Canada.

Canada has been built and sustained by the strength of immigrant peoples. Today, some 360 years after the first European adventurers settled on our shores, approximately one sixth of our population was born in some other land. The proportion at the last census is slightly higher than it was in 1951. The rate of immigrant movement in the 1950's was somewhat higher relatively than our birth rate.

Make no mistake, this country needs a larger population to achieve its full national potential. Our destiny cannot be fulfilled with only 18.7 million people. We simply do not have the population to develop the rich and vast resources of what is territorially one of the giant nations of the world. I would not hazard a guess as to what number of people is the balanced figure for our optimum national development, but we have ample room to grow in, that is certain! The question to be decided is not whether our population should grow, but at what pace it should grow.

New immigrants have made and will continue to make a vital contribution to our economic development, to our expansion. As consumers, they increase the demand for domestically produced goods and this additional demand creates new employment opportunities, new income, further demand throughout the country. And the impetus to the expansion of our domestic consumer market encourages the development of more efficient units of production, the establishment of newer and more diversified industrial enterprises and the reduction of our dependence upon the vagaries and uncertainties of external trade.

All this is quite apart from the new capital, the new assets brought to Canada by those who settle on hundreds of farms, by those who establish new industries. In 1962, over 100 million dollars in cash and other assets has been added to our economic stream by immigrants.

But look at the less mercenary aspect! The enrichment of Canadian life, the advancement of our culture! Each day I have reminders of how new arrivals, filled with enthusiasm, energy, and the will to succeed, have enriched our national culture, expanded our Canadian tradition in fields such as science, education, the arts, yes, even in politics.

As I look about the House of Commons, I am reminded of our ethnic diversity, from the present Prime Minister, the first Prime Minister not of Anglo-Saxon, or French origin, the delightful Minister of Labour, the many, many Members in whose veins flows the blood of many lands. Myself, something of an Irish rebel, I don't lament the tempering of Anglo-Saxon and Norman attitudes in politics by the spirit and enthusiasm of other bloods.

Our Canadian birth rate of 27 per thousand of population is one of the highest of the developed nations of the world. But the historic fact is that the normal processes of population growth, taken by themselves, are not enough. Yes, Canada must have a much larger population and immigration must be a major factor in that population growth.

I have described myself as an expansionist in immigration policy. That phrase I repeat. I am not one of those timorous souls who believes that a balanced intake of well-selected immigrants is an impediment to economic growth in Canada. On the contrary, I believe that the introduction into Canada of properly selected and prepared immigrants provides a positive, direct and immediate stimulus to the economic growth of the country.

Dangerous perhaps it is to endeavour to say in any particular year what is a desirable level of immigration or to set long range goals. But I believe nonetheless that we must step up our objectives, set targets for ourselves. In my view, the present absorptive capacity of the Canadian economy is approximately one per cent of our population per annum. This, I emphasize, is a target, an objective, not necessarily to be achieved in 1963 or in 1964, but a target, an objective which I believe is in the long run interests of the Canadian nation, one which will provide a genuine stimulus to our whole Canadian economy.

The "feast or famine" approach to immigration, the "tap on, tap off", will not produce the economic growth which all of us so greatly desire. In my view, a satisfactory flow of immigrants to Canada, particularly from our traditional sources, requires a consistent and regular programme of information and promotion. We need to tell our story abroad, to spell out the opportunities which exist in Canada, to assure prospective immigrants of the fact that Canadians genuinely want them as fellow citizens.

In my view, 1961 was the low point in our immigration. 1962 showed a slight upgrade and 1963 holds promise of very substantial improvement. Since the new Regulations came into effect last February 1, the number of applications received has increased by over 50% and the trend is definitely upwards. I shall do my best to stimulate that movement.

These new Regulations have now had eleven months of trial. On the whole, they are working well and have opened new avenues to prospective immigrants. They remove from our immigration laws the last vestiges of discrimination on the grounds of race, colour, or creed. Indeed, Canada is one of the few countries of the world which can assert that it has made a genuine, an honest effort to remove discrimination in its unsponsored immigration policy. That certainly will be the policy so long as I am the Minister.

Selection today is on the basis of universal and uniform criteria applied everywhere in the world. The stress is upon education, training, and skills as the principal conditions of admission. One of the problems which worries me is whether our definition of skills is adequate. There are certainly many difficulties in this field.

For example, it is difficult to equate training in different parts of the world with that required for Canadian employment. How do you assess qualifications and decide what is equivalent to Canadian training, experiences, and

J.D.C. Sent 250,000 Pounds Of Matzoth To France And Eight Other Countries

The Joint Distribution Committee shipped over 250,000 pounds of matzoth and other Passover supplies to nine European countries to enable needy Jews to observe the holiday properly. Edward M. M. Warburg, of New York, is JDC chairman. The 257,000 pounds shipped this year compares with 185,000 pounds distributed last year, Mr. Warburg said. All of the 72,000 pound increase went to France, whose Jewish population swelled during the last year by 120,000, mostly through migration from Algeria and other North African countries. Funds for this and other JDC relief and rehabilitation programs are provided mainly by the campaigns of the United Jewish Appeal.

The arrival of 120,000 refugees in France in the past year has increased the Jewish population by over 30 per cent and placed an extremely heavy burden on community facilities. Many are in desperate need, not only for Passover supplies but for housing, jobs, schools, synagogues, and other basic necessities. In all, more than 120,000 people will benefit from special Passover allocations made by JDC, Mr. Warburg said. In addition to providing matzoth in Europe, JDC is making special grants to 60,000 Jews on relief rolls in Algeria, Iran, Morocco, and Tunisia to enable them to buy matzoth locally. JDC has also provided matzoh meal and Passover wine.

In Poland, matzoth is baked by the official religious community with equipment provided by JDC. Money received from the sale of this matzoth is a major item in the income of the Polish religious community. Matzoh for the needy Jews of Poland is bought from the religious community by JDC and distributed to approximately 7,000 people. European countries to which JDC has made direct shipments of matzoth this year are: Albania, Austria, Belgium, France, Greece, Italy, Portugal, Spain, and Yugoslavia.

Brights FINE CANADIAN Wines
SINCE 1874

At your sabbath table, a decanter of wine is as much at home as a challah.

No wine is more welcome in Jewish homes in Canada than Mazel Tov, a wine made from Concord grapes grown on the sunny slopes of the Niagara Peninsula.

Mazel Tov is ruby red in colour, and richly sweet—but not cloying—to the taste. It's a wine you'll "remember", the kind of wine that you used to taste many years ago.

Mazel Tov, made 'Kosher l'Pesach' under strict rabbinical supervision, is available throughout the year for every 'simcha'.

CLASS IN COOKERY

MEAT LOAF

one and one-half pounds minced meat
one large onion
four hard boiled eggs
one medium-sized potato
one-half cup water
salt and pepper to taste

Add grated potato, onion, seasoning and water, and mix well. Heat a well-greased, loaf pan. Place one-half of meat mixture in pan. Press meat firmly in pan and place hard boiled eggs along centre of meat. Cover with the rest of the meat and bake in a moderate oven for one and one-half hours.

Mrs. Louis Albert,
5170 Cosgrain Street, Montreal.

PASSOVER SOUP MANDLEN

one-quarter cup peanut oil
one-half teaspoon salt
one-third cup water
one-half cup cake meal
two eggs

Bring oil, water, and salt to a boil. Add the cake meal all at once and blend over low heat until mixture forms a ball and pulls away from side of pan. Remove from heat and beat in eggs, one at a time, and continue beating for at least five minutes at a high speed. Lengthy beating is important. Drop from a spoon amounts of batter about the size of a pea, on a well-greased cookie sheet, and bake at 400 degrees for fifteen minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for another fifteen minutes or until golden brown. This recipe may also be used for cream puffs or eclairs.

Mrs. Ida Charendoff,
1840 Bathurst Street, Toronto.

SWISS STEAK

three of four slices shoulder steak three tablespoons chicken fat one medium green pepper
one diced onion
two cups canned tomatoes

In a deep, ten-inch casserole, heat fat and diced onion and brown well. Sprinkle steaks with flour, and salt and pepper to taste. Place on browned onions. Add sliced pepper and tomatoes. Cover tightly and simmer for one and one-half hours. Serve with vegetables.

Mrs. J. Yaffy,
2200 Capitaine Bernier Street, Montreal.

MATZOH KNAIDLACH

Wash, peel, and grate a large potato. Add salt, pepper, and celery salt, to taste. Add the yolk of one egg, two tablespoons matzoh meal, two tablespoons flour, and a pinch of baking powder. Mix well. Beat the egg white until snowy and fold it into mixture. Put mixture in freezer for twenty minutes. Boil a pot of water. Remove mixture from freezer, roll in hand by tablespoonsful, and drop into the boiling water. When the water and the knaidlach are bubbling together, cover pot, reduce heat somewhat and cook for twenty minutes. Use with chicken soup.

Mrs. A. Hershenhorn,
2 Keewatin Avenue, Toronto.

A $10,000-a-year gift for five years for the purchase of contemporary art by younger Canadian artists will be established by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bronfman, to be known as the Saidye and Samuel Bronfman Collection of Canadian Art. The works acquired will become part of the permanent collection of the Museum. Dr. Evan H. Turner, director, said the works will be chosen by the Museum's Canadian acquisitions committee, until it is felt to be desirable to do otherwise. It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Bronfman in creating the collection to encourage younger Canadian artists in all media by acquiring examples of their works and by stimulating the cultural life of the Montreal community by building up a collection of works which will show what young artists throughout Canada are thinking and producing. Works in all media, including sculpture, will be eligible as long as the artists are resident in Canada or Canadians living abroad. The artists must also be 35 years of age or under. Works may be exchanged or sold when so decided by the selection committee of the moment if such an exchange or sale is felt to improve the quality of the collection, Dr. Turner said. He invited eligible artists to submit photographs of their work for consideration by the committee, which may later ask that the works themselves be sent to the Museum. The staff will also visit exhibitions and meet with artists to search for possible works to be submitted to the committee.

ISRAEL DEMANDS GERMANY CURB WORK OF ITS EXPERTS IN EGYPT

Eugen Sänger, then head of the Institute of Jet Propulsion Physics in Stuttgart, to give up his work for the Egyptians. The Government then took the view he was making available to Cairo secret information derived from his work in West Germany.

Professor Sänger, who has been director of the newly created department of space travel research at west Berlin technical university since the beginning of the year, told the London Times correspondent that he could not imagine that so many Germans were working in Egyptian missile projects. He said he suspected that the Israelis had confused those German technicians doing aero-turbine work in Cairo.

Professor Sänger, who is the most prominent of the German rocket experts to work for the Egyptians, and some of whose pupils are still there, emphasized that he had only given lectures in Cairo; he had not taken any practical part in development projects.

German scientists, he said, would never have gone to Egypt if the Federal Government had been able to offer them the chance of real research at home. "For my collaborators there were no practical opportunities here for rocket research," he said. "In Egypt one was helped greatly."

In a leading article, the Stuttgarter Zeitung called on the Federal Government to make a public appeal to the scientists working in Egypt to put aside professional and financial advantages and think of their country's reputation. Germany, it pointed out, because of its recent past, could not take all her rocket scientists into state research projects, as other countries did, without arousing suspicions.

To let the scientists go on devising weapons for the Egyptians because of "constitutional barriers" would, however, make nonsense of the Federal Republic's reparations efforts to the Jewish people.

Apart from the Goercke affair, which has led the Swiss authorities to arrest two men, said to be Israel agents, there have been at least three other incidents involving German rocket scientists in recent months. The most dramatic of these concerned the disappearance of Dr. Heinz Krug, who had been a member of the Stuttgart Institute headed by Professor Sänger from Munich last September.

Dr. Krug left his office after a "Mr. Saleh" called at his office one morning, and only his car was found by the police afterwards. He had a business, which is believed to have arranged the delivery of rocket materials to Cairo.

Dr. Wolfgang Pilz, another rocket engineer, who once worked at Peenemünde and later also for Professor Sänger, disappeared about the same time, to turn up, however, in Egypt. A German girl secretary of his lost an eye after opening a parcel containing explosive. The parcel was addressed to the Cairo Institute.

The third case involved Dr. Hans Kleinwächter, another scientist believed to be working for the Egyptians, who narrowly escaped being shot dead last month at Lörrach, near Freiburg, reports the London Times. German warrants are out against the two men held by the Swiss for the attempted murder of Dr. Kleinwächter.

Fräulein Heidi Goercke, daughter of Professor Paul Goercke, has gone to Egypt "because she wants to save her father and herself", a justice official said.

Employed in Egypt, she is "now in constant danger of her life", Dr. Walter Burkhard, head of the criminal investigation department of the public prosecutor's office in Basle, Switzerland, said. He answered questions at a press conference after a statement had been issued on the circumstances leading up to the arrest of two alleged Israel agents in Zurich earlier this month.

Investigations are now going on to determine whether the two men are to be charged with "coercion". It is alleged that they tried to compel Fräulein Goercke to go to Egypt to persuade her father to abandon his work there. According to reports published by Swiss newspapers, the case is a further episode in a purported attempt by Israel to stop West German experts from constructing rockets with a range sufficient to carry them from Egyptian territory to targets in Israel.

Dr. Burkhard said that Fräulein Goercke was "perhaps not in Cairo" as had earlier been indicated, and that she would be available to the Swiss police for questioning.

The statement said that in February the prosecutor's office of Freiburg, West Germany, asked the Basle authorities to keep watch on a meeting at a Basle hotel on March 2 between Fräulein Goercke, daughter of Professor Paul Goercke, now employed at Cairo University, and her brother, and Dr. Otto Joklik, a 42-year-old Austrian, who was to be accompanied by Joseph Ben Gal, a 33-year-old Israeli.

According to information supplied with the request, Joklik had once worked for the United Arab Republic. His name was said in the statement to have been mentioned in connection with the disappearance from Munich last September of Dr. Heinz Krug, former manager of the West German Institute for Jet Propulsion Physics; and a recent attempt to murder, at Lörrach, just over the Swiss-German border from Basle, Dr. Hans Kleinwächter, another scientist believed to be working for Egypt.

Joklik, according to the statement, twice approached Fräulein Goercke at Freiburg last month, asking if he could discuss her father's activities, says the London Times. He also telephoned her in the name of an Israel organization which had been responsible for his ceasing his own employment with Egypt. Although Fräulein Goercke objected and also asked that any conversation should take place in Germany, Joklik persuaded her to meet him in Basle.

The Basle prosecutor's office agreed to the German request; it was considered necessary to provide protection for the Goerckes.

"Fräulein Goercke and her brother were watched, from the time they arrived at the station until their departure, by Basle detectives. The meeting at the hotel was also under surveillance. Joklik, who is forbidden entry to Switzerland, put the children of Professor Goercke in contact with Joseph Ben Gal. The latter, who, according to what has so far been ascertained, represented himself as acting on behalf of the Israel Government, or as being an Israel official, or as a member of an Israel organization, tried to convince Fräulein Goercke that she should go at once to her father and try to persuade him to abandon his present activities.

"In this connection, Ben Gal uttered menaces against Professor Goercke and let it be understood that he would regret it bitterly if he did not at once give up his work on behalf of the Egyptian Government."

Joklik and Ben Gal were later followed by the police to Zurich, where they were arrested.

Dr. Franz Schorrp, the Freiburg chief public prosecutor, said that a court at Lörrach had issued arrests warrants for Joklik and Ben Gal, says the London Times. He said the warrants were issued because the two men were under suspicion of having attempted to murder Dr. Kleinwächter.

ISRAELIS ARE MOST WELCOME IN WEST AFRICA

cipate in the program themselves — by contributing funds for joint companies and by paying salaries of experts. This seems to sit well.

The Israelis have created water development and construction companies with the Nigerians and have experts in several African countries. However, their main effort so far has been in Ghana.

In addition to the shipping line — incorporated with just about $1,500,000, with 40 per cent of it Israeli — there is a Ghana-Israel construction company. This company, with a total investment of less than $600,000, has handled projects totaling about $12,000,000 and this year returned a profit of about $100,000, says the New York Times. All told there are about 100 Israeli specialists in the country, almost all of them on Ghana's payroll.

There are teams of doctors and a public health specialist, pilots training Ghanaian cadets, Israelis training Ghanaian merchant seamen, agricultural experts, census specialists, labor experts. The whole package is kept free of fancy trimmings or world-shaking significance and both sides seem to like it that way.

"MY TASK IS TO BRING WARM-HEARTED, HUMAN UNDERSTANDING"

qualifications, that is the difficult problem. And it is not enough for a visa officer overseas merely to make a routine assessment of skills in the narrow sense.

Significant also is the assessment of such intangible qualities as resourcefulness, initiative, integrity, flexibility, intangibles which cannot easily be reduced to precise assessment, but which are the real qualities which make a good immigrant for Canada.

There are those who raise doubts about immigration, who talk of "the Babel of tongues" or use other discordant phrases. To them, I would suggest they first cast the mote out of their own eye. If there be any problem, it is one created very largely by those of us who are older immigrants to Canada, by our failure to extend a sufficiently warm welcome to the newcomers. This is one reason why your work is so significant.

Newcomers do not isolate themselves into cultural and linguistic ghettoes by choice. No immigrant wants to live in isolation from the rest of us, but he will cling to what he knows, until he feels secure in his new surroundings. It is up to us to help in giving him that feeling of security which will bring him out of his protective cultural and linguistic shell.

Personally I reject the idea of a pure Canadian culture, for that is what the expression "Babel of tongues" seems to imply. It is as repugnant as Hitler's doctrine of Nordic superiority. Today, Canada is approximately one-third Anglo-Saxon, one-third French, and one-third other in ethnic background. The Canadian culture in which I believe, arises from the collectivity of the cultures of all these groups — the acceptance by each of the best of the cultures of others.

Ours is and must always be a pluralist culture, made richer by the variety of its components. That is why it is right to speak of unity in diversity, that is why the full development of our nationhood requires the contribution of all Canadians whatever their background or heritage. And it is on that theory and principle that our immigration policy is based.

In 1963, Canada's general refugee programme will be continued. Unsponsored refugees from Europe will be admitted without numerical limitation and without applying the usual immigration standards of occupation and education. The refugee private sponsorship programme will also be continued.

It should be emphasized that in addition to Canada's special refugee programmes, in which the normal immigrant selection standards are greatly relaxed, the new Immigration Regulations permit refugees anywhere in the world to apply for admission to Canada as ordinary immigrants, subject to the usual standards of selection.

In any event I was not long on the job before I realized one thing — and it is at the very core of the administration of immigration which I intend to pursue. My task is to bring warm-hearted, human understanding to the cold print of immigration laws. The admission of immigrants, because of their economic contribution, because of factors which I might describe as economic opportunism, this cannot be the whole answer.

Humanitarian and moral considerations are basic considerations to be respected, to be applied in the administration of our immigration laws. The fundamental task of any Minister of Immigration is to maintain a fair, impartial, and non-discriminatory administration, coupled, and I emphasize that word, coupled with a warm and sympathetic understanding of the basic human problems involved.

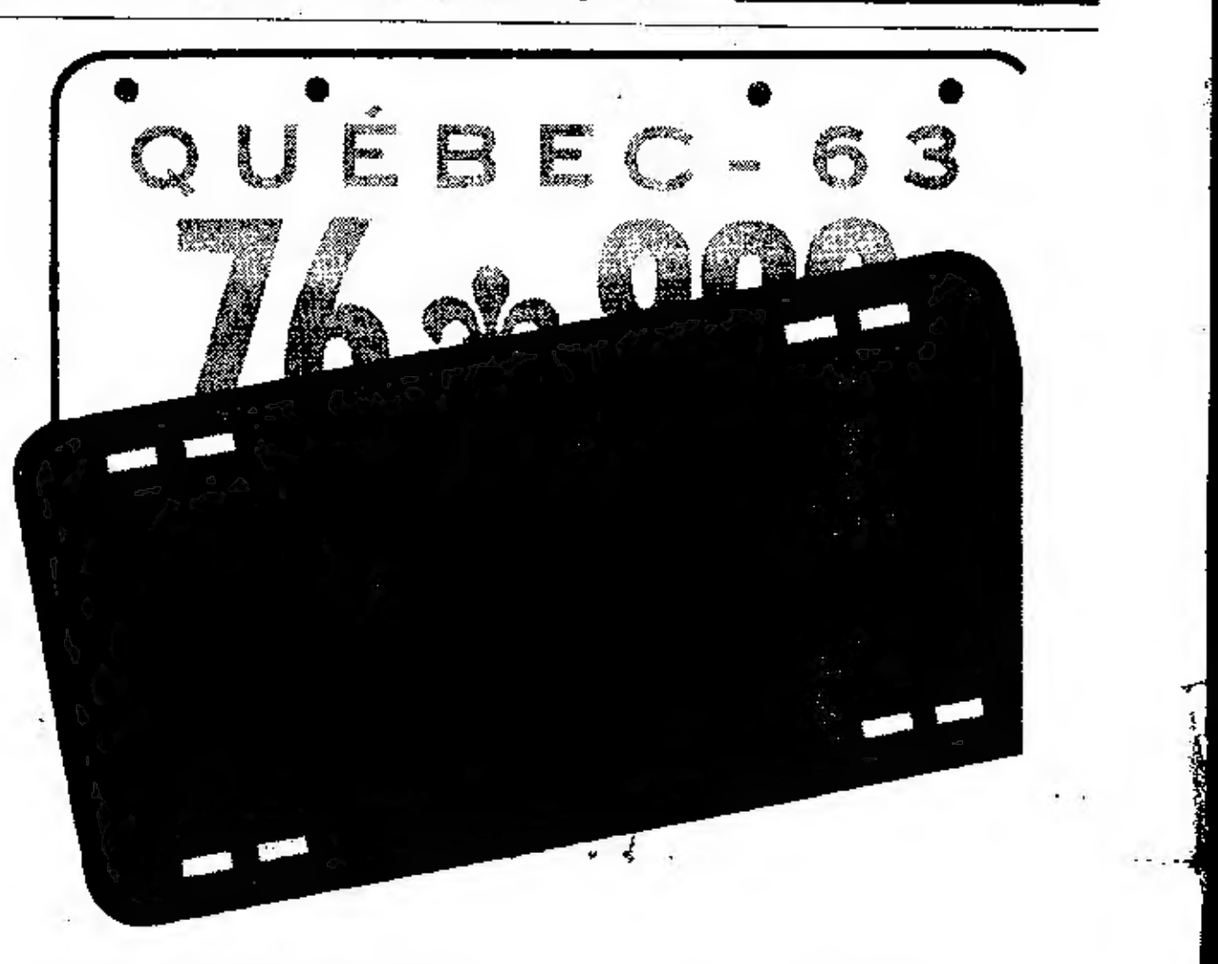
HOTEL SAINT-LOUIS

33 St. Louis St., Quebec — 522-2171



STARTING THIS YEAR, as a result of a recent amendment to the Québec Highway Code to help prevent automobile thefts, licence plates from now on must remain with the owner — and not with the motor vehicle itself.

HERE IS WHAT THIS MEANS:

1) When you register a motor vehicle in your name, you alone are responsible for the plates until Feb. 29th, 1964. If during that time you sell or trade your vehicle and become the owner of another one, you must: —

a) Remove the plates from your old vehicle and put them on the new one.

b) Without delay, obtain a registration certificate for your new car, and pay the difference in fees, if any.

2) If you sell your present vehicle and do not buy another one, you must immediately return your licence plates to the Motor Vehicle Bureau.

3) In the event that ownership of a motor vehicle is transferred by reason of death, donation, liquidation, winding up or bankruptcy, the new owner will use the same plates. However, he must obtain from the Bureau a new registration certificate for the vehicle in his own name.

4) If a vehicle is scrapped or broken down into parts, the licence plates and registration certificate must be returned to the Bureau for cancellation.

5) As long as you, as an automobile owner, have not conformed with the above conditions where applicable, you are deemed the legal owner for purposes of responsibility.

IMPORTANT: It is a serious violation to put on any vehicle, licence plates which have not been issued by the Bureau, or plates that have been issued for another vehicle.

Hias Helps Those In Flight Toward A Future For Their Children

BY JAMES P. RICE, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, OF UNITED HIAS SERVICE

United Hias Service, the worldwide Jewish migration agency, held its 79th annual meeting in New York. This organization was founded on the principle of helping Jewish migrants who had to flee from lands of oppression to find opportunities to build new lives in lands of freedom. Since our inception, more than three million men, women, and children have been given such an opportunity by our agency and those working with us.

But figures in millions are always difficult to digest, and perhaps it is a little more understandable to report that, since Hitler came to power in the early 1930's, United Hias Service and its predecessor agencies rescued and resettled close to 500,000 victims of the Nazis and other oppressive groups. Almost two-thirds of those people have been settled in the United States and the rest in Canada, Brazil, Australia, and other Western countries.

When you read figures like this, you ask yourself: "Well, isn't the problem solved?" I think the best answer to anyone asking such a question is what has happened in 1962 when 9,800 uprooted people were assisted to resettle in countries of the Western world by United Hias Service. Let us take a brief look at the lands and areas from which Jewish migrants have been departing.

It is necessary, to recall that, of the six million Jews who were killed by the Nazis, the vast majority came from Eastern Europe. Our agency gives the highest priority to the family reunion and resettlement of the pitiful remnant of these people who seek our assistance. Outside of the Soviet Union today, which numbers some two and one-half million to three million Jews, there are perhaps 315,000 in the other Eastern European countries.

A steady stream of people from Eastern European countries continues to arrive in our offices in Western Europe. In 1962, United Hias Service assisted about 2,800 of these people to join relatives and friends in other countries.

In North Africa at the end of the war, there were about 500,000 Jewish men, women, and children in the major countries. Today, perhaps half of them have migrated. Many were assisted by United Hias Service when they expressed the desire to emigrate to other parts of the Western world.

Why is it that so many of the Jews of North Africa find it necessary to leave? It is simply that most of them feel that, despite the generations and, in some instances, the thousands of years that Jews have been established in that part of the world, there is no longer a real future, especially for their children. The rise of Arab nationalism has brought further insecurity and anxiety to their daily lives. They can no longer tell what tomorrow will bring.

In Egypt, at the time of the Suez crisis, there were approximately 50,000 Jews in that part of the world. Today, there are not even ten per cent of that number. Here, again, we are proud that United Hias Service has been able to play a role in enabling a number of these people, a very substantial portion of them, to resettle in the Western world.

Then there is a country whose name is constantly in the headlines of newspapers all over the world: Cuba. In 1959, there were about 10,000 Jews in that country. Many of these people had come to Cuba as refugees, either during the period between the two world wars or after World War II. When the first trickle and then flood-tide of Cuban refugees began to come to the United States, it soon became evident that among them was this pitiful remnant, too, of Jewish refugees. Probably less than a third of that original group are still in Cuba. The majority have been enabled to come to the United States, most of them aided, directly or indirectly, by United Hias Service.

Why are the Cuban Jews leaving? Whatever one's feelings may be about the Castro regime, it can and must be said that there never has been, to the best of our knowledge, any anti-Semitism.

The Jews are finding it necessary to leave because their whole way of life has been disrupted. I am not speaking merely of the disruption of their commercial and professional way of life, which is certainly bad enough, especially for people who have been refugees once before in their lives, but here again the most important motive has been the future of the children.

During its 79th year of activity, United Hias Services estimates it will provide migration assistance to 7,500 persons from the foregoing areas of current migration. At the same time, we are fully aware that, in this troubled world, new emergencies may require our urgent and immediate attention, which may drastically increase these estimates, as has happened so often in the past.

For the record: How does the nation's strongest unified party stand on major issues?

Out of the welter of election speeches have come certain clear statements of principle by the Liberal Party. They are presented here for your consideration in the form of excerpts from speeches by Liberal Leader Pearson.

Stable Government: "We want a Parliament that can make decisions, a stable government that will act. We want a government that will put the national welfare above party advantage . . . .a government that is willing to be judged on its work over four years rather than on its day to day fortunes."

Parliamentary Program: "We will have a program for Parliament, with priorities extending over four years. The first priority will be to restore purpose and direction in the management of our national affairs."

Confederation: "The first need, after restoring confidence and putting order into the nation's business, is to strengthen national unity on the basis of equal partnership for the two founding races . . . Canada is a bi-cultural, bilingual nation and Confederation cannot be maintained on any other basis."

Foreign Policy: "A Liberal government will not try to show how broad our Canadian shoulders are by going around with a chip on them. Our foreign policies will be carried out in a way that will gain respect for Canada in the world. We will not allow co-operation, even with our best friends, to be confused with subservience."

Defence Policy: "Let us keep the Atlantic alliance strong, for protection and for peace. Canadians want to know that we are carrying our full load in NATO and NORAD and that we are honouring our commitments."

Political Promises: "I believe we can put forward the Liberal program and proposals without trying to bribe voters by promises which we cannot or should not attempt to carry out."

Canada needs these principles in action. Support the Liberal candidate in your riding.
